

Racism is a Public Health Crisis

There are too many lives lost due to violence and systemic racism. This is especially true for our Black transgender communities.

Intersectionality is a core value of the Transgender Health Program and we are dedicated to dismantling the barriers that racism has created resulting in health inequities. We MUST listen to our Black community voices as we move forward with a strategy for ending racism.

We will not shy away from these hard conversations and will echo the statement made by the School of Medicine, "we are responsible for what is happening and we are accountable to see that it ends."

Core Team Members

Cori Agarwal, MD

Isak Goodwin, MD

Erika Sullivan, MD

Jeremy Myers, MD

Bernadette Kiraly, MD

Pamela Mathy, PhD, CCC-SLP

Nicole Mihalopoulos, MD

James Hotaling, MD

Joanne Rolls, PA-C

Norelle Walzer, PA-C

Marisa Adelman, MD

